

„How best to combine work and family“

Have you ever think about children?

Have you ever think to slow down your business live?

One opinion is, to pause your job to be a full time parent.

Then you really know what's happening at home and to your family.

Then there's time to support and educate or have fun.

Another way is to work full time and pay somebody to look after your children.

There will still be time, witch you can spent with your family but normally it will be rare.

A reason to do this is to get much money, so the family can buy all the needed stuff.

But you also have the opportunity to split time for both, family and work. If you like to work full time again and you didn't stop working completely, it isn't as hard.

Because you already got changes by the time you work.

You also have time who you didn't think about family and otherwise.

In the end, I think half time work is one of the best options.
